HISTORY

What will I learn?
<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • The Early Tudors (Henry VII, Henry VIII, Edward VI, Mary I) (Paper 1) • Democracy & Dictatorships in Germany 1919-1963 (Paper 2) • Popular Culture & the 16th Century & 17th Century Witch Craze (Paper 3) • Holocausts in the 20th century (personal study)
How will I be assessed?
3 written exams: 1 hour 30 minutes (25% - paper 1), 1 Hour (15% - paper 2), 2 hours 30 minutes (40% -paper 3) One Historical Investigation. This is a non-exam assessment. This is a personal study based on a topic of students' choice. This will take the form of a question in the context of approximately 100 years. It will be 3000-4000 words. This is worth 20% of A-level and is marked by teachers and moderated by OCR.
Is there anything else I need to know?
We recommend that you gain at least a grade 5 or above in History at GCSE, as without this level of prior attainment you will struggle to reach the level required for A level. This is a major step-up from GCSE. You will be expected to talk and explain your answers and to be prepared to argue and debate. There will be the expectation that you do regular homework, personal study and read around the topic. There will be a lot of quiz style homework to make sure that you learn the key facts. The emphasis will be on you organising your time in order to maximise your progress. This is a course which prepares you for Higher Education. Due to the rigour of the exam questions students are required to produce arguments and not simply learn and repeat "answers". The more you research the topics, the easier this will become.

Future Opportunities?

History A level is highly regarded at all universities and is highly valued by the Russell group of universities as it is still considered to be one of the traditionally rigorous subjects of enquiry, debate and argument.

The literacy rich content of the course, the depth of enquiry and communication skills which you will need to develop during A2, will compliment most other A Levels.

History study skills are very employable assets in a wide range of careers. History is considered to be an excellent springboard into Law, Politics, Economics, Sociology and the Social Sciences, Government, Diplomacy, Civil Service, Management, Languages, Education, American Studies, European studies and any career where the analysis of complex data is required to be analysed and presented to others in a coherent and understandable format.
